CRAZY LITTLE THING CALLED LOVE

Poignant portraits of the ties that bind – and sometimes knot

In 2004, Footstool Players was asked to prepare a series of sketches that would highlight various issues affecting marriage and family relationships to support marriage enrichment seminars being conducted by Focus on the Family Malaysia in association with the Ministry of Women, Family and Community Development. These sketches were so well received that we decided to build on the themes and issues covered in those sketches and develop a full-length production of our own.

And so “Crazy Little Thing Called Love” was born.

We are thankful to be able to partner once again with Focus on the Family Malaysia. They have set up a resource booth for this performance, and we hope you will take time during the intermission or after the show to browse through and perhaps purchase their excellent resources for enriching your love, courtship, marriage and family life.

While we are a Christian organisation, the values communicated in “Crazy Little Thing Called Love” are universal values shared across the various major faiths represented in our country. We have deliberately steered clear of religious references pertaining to any one particular religion in order to reach a broader audience with the message of the play.

But for those of us who are Christians, let us be reminded that God expects our relationships with our spouses and families to reflect his character and his love relationship with us. He also uses parental and spousal language to illustrate his relationship with us, and so some of the sketches in this play are in effect parables of our life with God. It is therefore our hope that the play will be a challenge to us not merely in our relationships with each other, but also with God.

“We love God best when we love each other well.” – Steven Curtis Chapman

I would like to express my utmost appreciation to my team members who have sacrificed much to share this production with you. Thanks, guys, for sharing this journey with me. Thanks are also due to their loved ones who sacrificed much too. Thank you too to all our hosting churches and groups.

Above all, thank YOU for coming tonight! Wherever you are in your own personal journey with that “crazy little thing called love”, we hope that as you watch the play, as you laugh or shed a tear, you’ll also be caused to think – and perhaps also discover. Enjoy!
